

EVEN JAMBOS ARE VOTING GREEN!

In this year's Scottish Parliament elections, the Scottish Greens are tipped to do better than ever before, picking up support from across Edinburgh.

People who have never voted Green before are lining up to give the Scottish Greens their second vote on May 5
Yes, even Hearts supporters!

One Green supporter is Hearts' season ticket holder, Nigel Bagshaw. He said:

"Like many Hearts fans I have my suspicions about anything green. So for me to back the Greens in the election means they must really be on to something."

The Greens' top candidate in Lothian is Alison Johnstone, who has lived in West Edinburgh all her life. Alison is bidding to succeed Robin Harper as regional Green MSP. Just 6% of second votes will see Alison elected.
